

Dear Applicant for Sober Living Environment Registration,

Thank you for your interest in Sober Living Registration. The California Consortium of Addiction Programs and Professionals, (CCAPP) endorses the concept of sober living, and the establishment of Sober Living Environments (SLE). It has been our experience that a majority of the persons leaving our recovery programs do not have access to affordable sober living accommodations. We have also learned through our experiences that the longer a person is exposed to and part of a sober community; the better his or her chances are for long time recovery. Unfortunately, not all facilities holding themselves out to be Sober Living Homes consider the comfort and welfare of the recipient as the most important ingredient.

CCAPP has developed minimum standards for Sober Living Environments. Standards are the first step in asking the industry to regulate itself. The second step is to establish a process whereby programs can be recognized by their peers for meeting the minimum standards.

CCAPP has established a registration process for homes meeting the Sober Living Standards. It is not a certification or accreditation, but rather an acknowledgement that a facility states that it meets the SLE Standards, declares that it will continue to abide by the Standards, and is visited on an annual basis by peers who witness the environment and recognize that the program meets the minimum Standards. The name of the program is then placed in the official Registry, and the program receives a certificate.

We charge a minimal annual fee, which covers the cost of processing the program and paying transportation costs of our peer reviewers. Please complete and submit the attached application. You will be notified of your review date and receive a copy of the Standards and review material.

Sincerely,

Susan B. Blacksher, MSW
Chief Executive Officer

SOBER LIVING ENVIRONMENTS

Revised: January, 2015

INTRODUCTION

In the last few years there has been a proliferation of Sober Living Environments (SLE's) throughout the State. The purpose of a Sober Living Environment is to offer a housing alternative to individuals who are recovering from alcohol and or drug addiction. SLE's offer a supportive non-drinking environment to persons who would otherwise find themselves limited to housing space that is not conducive to recovery. These environments are not subject to licensing by any State agency and are not subject to certification or accreditation. As a result SLE's have not been subject to any established standards. As in any industry, abuses have been identified, and have been associated with the larger movement in some instances.

The California Consortium of Addiction Programs and Professionals (CCAPP) endorses the concept of sober living, and the establishment of Sober Living Environments. It has been our experience that a majority of the persons leaving our recovery programs do not have access to affordable sober living accommodations. We have also learned through our experiences that the longer a person is exposed to and part of a sober community; the better his or her chances are for long time recovery. Many of our programs have established "alumni" houses, resident run housing, graduate houses, etc. We have encouraged our graduates to seek other sober individuals and to live in a sober environment.

We have been concerned about the reported misconduct in some living environments, which have been identified with the sober living movement. We have worked with programs throughout the State, and have been involved with community groups which are trying to reduce the number of abuses. As a result, CCAPP has developed minimum standards for Sober Living Environments. We have circulated these standards in the communities around the State. We have incorporated suggestions from individuals and the Association's Board of Directors has reviewed the final standards. The Standards are available for groups contacting our office that are interested in establishing SLE's. Standards are the first step in asking the industry to regulate itself. The second step is to establish a process whereby programs can be recognized by their peers for meeting the minimum standards.

CCAPP has established a registration process for homes meeting the Sober Living Standards. It is not a certification or accreditation but rather an acknowledgment that a home states that it meets the SLE Standards, declares that it will continue to abide by the Standards, and is visited on an annual basis by peers who witness the environment and recognize that the program meets the minimum Standards. The name of the program will then be placed in the official Registry, and the program will receive a certificate.
